WATER-PURIFYING, RUBBER BUCKET

CHAIN PUMP,

And is prepared to furnish said Chain Pumps on short notice.

The advantages of this Pump over many others are many. The Chain being buttonless, it is much lighter, consequently it is not liable to break, and works much easier. The Rubber Duckets, which are attached to the Chain, will not wear the tubing, consequently it will lest longer than when Metal Buttons are used. It is, positively, ANT-FREEZING. It is a positive Water Puriller, as each bucket is constructed with an Air Chamber, which carries a given quantity of pure air into the water which in-mediately diffuses through the entire body of water, parifying and cleaning, and rendering it fit for use.

"PLEASE CHARGE THIS."

Son of the Soli,

These three words are of immense is the ONE THING NEEDFUL. Say, friend, importance to every head of a family or have you got it? If not, you will find other expenses incident to existence.

selves, and every time they are repeated this chain becomes stronger and stronger till its burden cannot longer be These three words add fifty per cent.

to the cost of any article we purchase, for the seller wants, and very likely needs, cash, and as he can turn his noney over several times before we can liquidate his claim he charges, in addition to the eash price, a profit for each time he might have used his money had we paid cash on the spot.

These three words, easily and pleasuntly spokon, and as pleasantly responded to, make a man the abject slave of the creditor. "He toils from early morn till dowy eve," but the accumulating interest so hampers his energies and depletes his carnings that freedom becomes a boon greatly to be desired but scarcely expected. From January to December he labors, breaking a link of the servile chain occasionally, but too frequently adding two, and if both ends can be made to meet when the accounts are balanced, the fact is made an occa-from every farmer's vocabulary. He gists at 75 cents per bottle. cannot afford, of all men, to pay enormous interests, nor can he allow debts to accumulate when future and uncertain gains can only be relied upon. This reliance too often proves a broken reed, and, sooner or later, brings humiliation and bankruptcy.

These three words need never be spoken if a thorough self-denial be practiced for a year or two. Pay us you go, involves no accumulating burlens, but lightens instead the daily toutine of labor. It is wonderful to note how much a family can dispense with, if a rigid system of economy preails, and a determination to live within ts means exists.

These three words may be used as a temporary means of bridging a hard place, but their use is always extremely nazardous, and should never be used when "Pay as you go" or "Cash on the spot" can by any means be substituted.

WONDERS OF THE SEA.

Who can tell of all wondrous things and there; and a velvety carpet of diminutive plants covers the ground. Flowform beds in the moss. Blue, red, purple and green little fish dart there, and between the bushes glides like a scrpent, the long silvery ribbon-Thus beautiful it is in the day; but when night comes on, and you suppose all creatures have gone to bed, the landscape grows more lovely still. Little erabs and medusas light up the sea; the sea pen quivers with green phosphoric light; what was brown and red in the day is changed into bright green, yellow and red; and amongst all these glitter-ing jewels the moon-fish like a silvery crescent.

A GREAT ARID DESERT.

Recent explorations in Australia show that in addition to an extraordinary lake of salt water in the centre of the country which hlights thousands of square miles of territory in its vicinity, there is beyond an arid desert of greater extent than any other in the world, on which there is neither animal or vegetable life to be found, and even on the borders of which nothing but the divers any brush can be seen.

and even on the borders of which nothing but the dryest sage brush can be seen.—
An attempt was made to survey this sand sea at its supposed narrowest part, and after traveling over three hundred miles the camels showed signs of exhaustion, and a return became absolutely necessary but habitable ground was not reached before several of these supposed monarchs of Sahara dropped dead. It is thus shown that only the western part of Australia can be utilized as a refuge for the tralia can be utilized as a refuge for the thousands of Europeans who are seeking homes in the new country, and that more than half the island continent will not support men or animals, and hence that the limit of population can already be reasonably or approximately estimated. ---

ASTONISHING SUCCESS.

Who can tell of all wondrous things that live in the sea? In the Indian Ocean, many feet below the surface of the water, grow wonds quite as luxuriant as any jungles or thickets we read of in South America. Some of the trees grow as high as two houses piled one on another. They are called by a hard name—"nerrocysten." The roots resemsemble coral, and from the slender stem grows a cluster of very long leaves. Other trees grow almost as high, and ond in one single huge leaf that is about the size of our forest trees. IMPOSING DISPLAY AND ELO-QUENT UTTERANCES.

"SAUL IS DEAD."

The funeral of Senator Morton yestorday, at Indianopolis, was one of the most imposing ever witnessed in this country, and called out immense crowds of people. Had the weather been less inanspicious the attendance would probably have been 50 per cent, larger than it was, but a cold, dreary rain began to full on Sunday night, and continued almost without interruption antil about noon on Monday, when the clouds lifted and the sun shone at intervals throughout the afternoon. The streets were very muddy, and this also interfered with the success of the procession.

LYING IN STATE.

The body of the dead senator bay in state during the whole of Sunday, and until 10:30 A. M. on Monday, in the main corridor of the court house a magnificent building and was viewed on Sunday by nearly 50,000 people. On Monday there was also a continuous stream of people passing the remains, from the opening to the closing of the

The easket was placed on a platform covered with black in the center of the grand corridor and the great stairways The doors of the rooms opening into the corridor, the bidestrades of the upper corridors and other available space were draped in black. Under the eastern stairway, facing the entrance, was a life size portrait of the deceased duped with black relieved by a delicate vine and white flowers. At the head and feet of the deceased were rare tropical plants, while stacks of arms, stands of displayed. Over the eastern entrance wreaths of laurel, was the monogram O, P. M." From the bidustrates of the upper corridors laurel wreaths were suspended. Down each side hung the folds of black drapery with silver fringe and tassels. On the top at the foot of the coffin stood a broken pillar of white flowers, at its foot on one side a confused mass of broken roses, on the other side a white rose cross. At the head on a raised stand of black velvet a white dove with outspread wings stood over a bank of violets and roses, with an anchor and stars of flowers lying in front. Over the neck of the dove hung a white silk band, whereon in red letters

No winning of tire, no pating of cay, But rising, still rising, as passing away, Farewell, gallant Bagle, thou art farmed in Farewolf, gallant Engle, thou not burned in light. And spend there to Henven, long Sun of one alghi the the deeds which will not passuway; His the name that will not wither.

A tribute from friends in New Albert.

immenso heart of ten roses, in the center a white flower scroll, inscribed with violet letters, "Our Hero," Ali these floral decorations were the gifts of

The coffin itself was a rich piece of oriental metallic work, full silver mounted, in weight 550 pounds. On the lid the Odd Fellows emblem and a plate inscribed:

QLIVER P. MORROS, Born August 4, 1823, Died November 1, 1877,

The interior was lined with pure white satin, trimmed with silk fringe. The dead was dressed in a broadcloth robe, about the neek a white tie, and upon the bosom plain gold studs. The undereasing of the upper half was a glass plate through which the thousands looked down on the mortal remains of him for whom all this mourning was,

At the head and foot of the coffin stood a soldier resting on his gun, the muzzle down. On each side, through the long corridor, paced the guards, The opening of the transept, which led from the front toward the left side of the catafalque, was hung with flags and crape while in front stood two wreathside, closing the great door to the sheriff's office, was a silver eagle on a flagdraped stand. Above hung a life-size bust portrait of Senator Morton wreathed in crape and vines, with a back ground of flags and a frame work around, all of massive black. The stair posts and rails were covered with black. grouped and looped with flags and vines and flowers. Up to the corridors the balustrades which guard the openings were hung in black. From an alcove in the top corridor came the swelling strains of music at intervals during the time

One passer by laid on the dais a shoet of paper containing a pressed leaf and the words, "Peace to your ashes, noble statesman. Your soul will always be alive to those who love our country."

A touching episode which occurred n Sunday evening is thus described by one of the city papers:

At 7 o'clock last evening the court louse was cleared to make mon for the FUNERAL OF SENATOR family and immediate friends of the senator. As the sad-eyed mourners gathered about the easket a band staioned in a distant corridor struck up the strain, "The Sweet Bye and Bye." The scene became almost wierdly impressive, and can never be forgotten by those who were present. The music completely filled the vast building, producing a very dramatic effect

At the appointed hour the body was removed from the court house to the ate residence of the deceased, where it was viewed for the last time by the sorrowing friends, and the procession was then formed and started for the place where the funeral services were to tako place - Roberts Park M. E. Church. The scene inside the church (which is an exceptionally fine one) was a very impressive one. The great organwhich fills the space in the rear of the pulpit, a gleaming mass of silver pipes set in black walnut frame-work and walled in by the broad descending gallery bahistrades and pulpit frame, had flowing from a crape loop at the top two broad bands of black, parting to the left and right at the foot. From the side gas jets in the gallery stretched down to the key bank of the organ two immense flags, the blue fields meeting in the center, and their waying folds looped and intertwined with crape. In front of each of the large stained glass windows, above and below, through which the light streamed as through a prism, stood three delicate silk guidons. prossed like an escutcheon. At each of the supporting pillars of the gallery stood a gold fringe, gold starred silken bunner of the line, the blue field at the top of the folds turned around the pillar on the crape bands. Along the gallory balastrades, were stretched great garrison flags with crape bands looped with erape rosettes. At each end of the balustrades, in the rear of the pulcolors and bunting were appropriately pit, stood a silk standard bound with crape. Over the pulpit and stand lay on a drapery of black surrounded with another garrison flag with black drapings completely covering the whole front, while the pulpit itself had a second covering of a silk standard, the blue field resting just under the Bible. On this rested a noble star of white flowers, two feet from point to point. Below it a broad crape band looped with black silk bows. The altar rail was covered with black trimmed with smiles with knots of white flowers,

> The large space inside the after rail, and between it, and the pulpit stand was clouded with a mass of the most benutiful and touching floral decorations, all gifts from at home and abroad. The deliency of art had wrought nature's choicest handiwork into harps and stars, crosses, anchors, pillows, hearts, scrolls, and broken masses which told of desolation as loudly as the emblems

When the doors were opened the first to enter were the officiating clergymen, On the coffin, near the foot, lay an then the family of the deceased, after which came the committee from the United States Senate, comprising Senators Davis of Illinois, McDonald of Indiana, Burnside of Rhode Island, Booth of California, Cameron of Pennsylvania and Bayard of Delaware. Each wore a broad white sush, with black and white rosettes. Then followed the committee from the lower house of congress, Messrs. Hanna and Cobb of Indiana, Burchard of Illinois, Banks of Massachusetts, Davidson of Florida, Townsend of New York and Wilson of West Virginia. Among the other distinguished persons who entered at this time were Secretaries Evarts and Thompson and Attorney General Devens, representing the cabinet of the United States; Birchard Hayes, eldest son of the president, Governor Cullom of Illinois, the state officers of Illinois, Governors Hendricks and Williams, Hon. Benjamin H. Bristow and wife, General Harlan and wife, Murat Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial, Richard Smith, of the Gazette, Chauncey Newton of the Enquirer, Col. R G. Ingersoll, Hon, J. N. The sermon by Mr. Cleaver, pastor of the Central Christian Church of Indianapolis, of which Mrs. Morton is a member, was a most masterly effort, more in the nature of an culogy than a sermon. The text was a fragment of the 7th verse of the second chapter of Second Samuel, "Sant is dead." We have room for only a couple of ex-

The king requires no limit. Sant is dead The king requires no hand—Saul is dead A child of obscurity rocked—in the cradle of penury by the hand of maternal purity, with no dower saving nerve and will and patience and force beyond the common, he lived the life and grew the growth of the average western youth. Through school and workshop, by the bar and the bench and the legislative hulls of his native commonwealth, he passed with sure but rapid strides, in his eye the light glesning of a courage which never fell interest in his average which never fell interest in his average. in his heart a self-assurance dismay, in his heart a self-assurance which gave him calm and balance when all about him were recling in confusion, and which sustained him in the perpetration of magnificently gigantic inconsistencies whose weight would have overwhelmed in the swirl of ruin a lesser man. So he came to face the epoch when rigid lines and old Issues became liquified— A born lender, he was not found in the renr of those who forgot all else to remember only their batred to chattel slavery, their loyally to the American idea. And when in accord with the logic that a part is greater than a sum of all the part is the content of parts states—sought to rush madly from their places in the nation; when the slave oligarchy appealed from the ballot to the sword: when they who could no langer rule would fain have ruined; when the hearts of brave men fainted because of fear, when temporizing statesmen were swept away together with the shifting quicksands of their attempted compromise; in that hour of darkness, when rea-son seemed paralyzed, when wise lawyers were at fault for want of a precedent, this man proved equal to the emergency. His hps framed to pronounce in yonder half the speech which allayed fear, dissipated clouds, slew the doctrine of peaceable secession and inaugurated the policy of force, it necessary, to the preser-vation of the life of the nation. This speech was declared by Lincoln, the president elect, to cover all the ground and to outline the policy to be by him pur-sued from the first. And he kept his word. Kept it, although the policy filled the land with graves and made each state an Accidama. Still was pursued by the government the policy outlined by your great son until in the crimson letters of inified strift the nations of earth saw and were connected to own true the sawn. and were compelled to own true the proposition which was the peroration of his great speech of Nov. 22, 1800; "The United States is not a confederacy bound found by a row of soul. To allege that this man was faultless would be to impeach his humanness. He has been charged with interested motives. Let it be granted. The like allegation as against the Savior of mankind would stand. He ims been accused of ambition The accusation is just. As a boy, he was ambitious to learn. As a man, he was ambitious to serve, to bear burdens, to assume responsibilities from whose weight other shoulders shrank

He was ambitious to stand three paces to the front, not so much for vainglory as that he might receive the hard blows, bear the brunt. And did he not receive the blows, and right yeomanly bear the brunt? Like himself, his ambition was grand,

He has been accused of malice, of hat-red of the south. The record will show this accusation to be without foundation this accusation to be without foundation in fact, and among his warnest personal friends no one could go further to prove this than the recently uttered tribute of an honorable senator who has been his bitterest political enemy. They who have styled him "the apostle of hute," err. They forget that while he has stood tirm for the principles of the American idea, he has nevertheless over and often declined that the south by recognizing political toloration, and in good faith guaranteeing to all life, liberly and property, might find herlife, liberty and property, might find her-self restored to peace and substantial resperity. But it is equally true that with him there was no apologizing for having been the friend of the union. He did not think hat the man who honestly fought beneath that the man who honestly fought beneath folds of the stars and bars was just as good as the one who fell following the stars and stripes He did think it wrong policy to admit blatant, unrepentant rebels—unpardoned and not destring pardon—to a control of the government than had strives in whit to destron. they had striven in vain to destroy. Sena-tor Morton thought there was a difference between loyalty and treason, and that the traitor should be punished for his treason, and holding these views he had the courage of them. He did not truckle. He did age or them. He did not truckle. Its did not endoavor to smother the grouns of the oppressed by proclaiming an era of good feeling to their oppressors. While he was desirons that the lion and the lamb should be down together he preferred that the lamb should not be on the inside of the lion. He did not believe that "white" necessarily meant right or that under our national constitution two men possessing intelligent force should rule ignorant mer whom they had coerced. The chancery of events may yet decide that the philoso phy of these rugged harsh views was truer and on the whole wiser and more states-manlike than the smooth sleek-voiced pol-icy which seeks to placate brazen injust-ice at the expense of mercy and rightcous-ness defrauded from the helpless.

After the sermon Rev. Dr. Bayless, pastor of the Roberts Park M. E. church, delivered an eulogy upon the domestic and social life of Senator Morton, in which he paid an eloquent tribute to his affectionate disposition and his stern integrity. Had not this article already grown to such large proportions we should be glad to make some extracts

During the progress of the services the procession had been forming, under the direction of Gen, Lew Wallace, and it moved promptly at their conclusion. The line comprised about a dozen bands and drum corps, a number of companies of the Indiana National Guard, all handsomely uniformed and equipped, a large body of veteran soldiers carrying the tattered remnants of the battle flags of the Indiana regiments, some 1,500 members of the Odd Fellows' order, distinguished guests and citizens in carriages, the entire fire department of Indianapolls, &c. The procession must have been over two miles in length, and oc- | Sistova and Turnova, the Mussulman cupied nearly forty minutes in passing a given point. The ceremonies at the cemetery were under the charge of the Odd Fellows, and were not concluded and families at one time were gathered until a late hour in the evening.

> LONDON, Nov. 5 .- A Vienna dispatch says that the recent Russian successes have renowed the war agitation in Bel-grade. Russian official bulletins report continued progress on Plevna, Orchanic and Lovatz. Teilwen and Turskijsooi are occupied by infantry and cavalry, and a cavalry detachment has penetrated Yablonitza Pass in pursuit of the retreating Turks.

A Turkish force, numbering between 3,000 and 4,000 men from south of the Balkans, attacked a Russian force at Mahren, south of Elena. After three hours' fighting the Turks retreated, leaving 100 dead and many wounded.

A Paris dispatch says it is asserted that Madame DeStael's retreat on Lake Geneva is being prepared for the reception of her grandson, Duc de Broglie.

We trust that congress will find time to demonetize and speedily retire from circulation the new twenty-cent piece. There never was any necessity for its coinage, and it serves no useful purpose except to unscrupnious and small dealers, who find it an almost infallible aid in cheating unwary customers in making change. The Nemadic Turks.

I never so thoroughly realize the fact that the Turks are still essentially what they were in the very beginning of their history, a wandering horde rather than a nation, as when I see these long lines of Mussulman villagers driving before them their flocks and herds or marching stoutly along by the side of the buffalo wagons, which contain the whole of their possessions and household goods, including their wives and their poultry. Many a time I have reined in my horse by the roadside, and watched the emigration and immigration of the village population in the district on both sides of the Kara Lom river, between Rustchuk and Shumla. In the early days of the war, when the apathy of Abdul Kerim allowed the Russians to overrun unchecked the whole country between population of the villages in the threatened district deserted the country and swarmed across the Jantra and Lom in multitudes, no loss than fifteen thousin the neighborhood of Eski` The fugitives from Rustchuk fled southward, through Rasgrad, to Shumla, and those from the Dobrudia and the towns on the lower course of the Danube converged upon Varna as a city of refuge. Throughout the whole of the sent of war the long caravan of flying Musselman peasantry might be seen toiling slowly but patiently along the dusty roads, apparently quite reconciled to their fate and feeling it no hardship to live in the open air for days and weeks together until they arrived at their destination. Indeed, many thousands have lived all the summer and are living still without any other shelter than that afforded by their arabas or govered earts or by a gourble of boughs and leaves. By night they sleep in the carts and by day squat about on the ground under their shadow.

How Senator Morton Answered a De-mand for an Apology.

Hon. Albert G. Porter, at a meeting of the bar at Indianapolis, on Friday last, to take into consideration the death of Senator Morton, related the following

I may state that I have seen Governor Morton at the bar, and remember the talent he displayed in the conduct of an important cause some years since. It was a case in which he rose to his full height; and during his address he had occasion to speak in strong terms in regard, to the course followed by his opponent. The remarks of Mr. Morton gave offense, and his opponent was man who had not taken the advice of Polonious to his son, Beware of en-trance into a quarrel." The man was one of those addicted to carrying arms, and thought he could intimidate the great lawyer. "You have insulted me, and I demand an apology." The reply was, "I shall make no apology—none, and his assailant slunk away

DRAIN Your CRLLARS.-The lay of the land in most parts of Decatur occupled by residences, is such as to render the draining of cetters comparatively easy, and it is a wonder that people will live, as many do, with water in their collars a good part of the year, rendering their homes damp and unhealthy. In most cases a tile drain of from one to five hundred feet in length, will give dry celhirs, and that at an expense of not more than seven or eight dollars to the hundred feet. J. S. HEWES, Register pro tem. PERSONAL.

Miss Sadie J. Strohm, of Plainfield Pa., is visiting relatives and friends in Decatur.

Mr. George Strohm, well known to most of our readers, arrived home from Texas last night, where he has been solourning for the last two years. He intends to remain here only a short time.

Mr. Harvey Towling, of Cheyenne Wyoming territory, has our thanks for a late copy of the Cheyenne Leader. The get-up of the paper indicates a live town as the place of its publication.

Gen. Tom Thumb and his party came in o-day and registered at Priest's hotel.— The ponies and hack with the colored driver perambulated the streets previous to the performance this afternoon.

Mr. W. T. Duncan, the well-known and popular elocutionist, is now in the city and should favor our citizens with his highly humorous and dramatic lecture, "Flies in the Web."

THE TIME TO BUY.—Real estate men say that at no time for many years has real estate been so low in the city as now. Desirable lots, with or without improvements, may be had at prices which bring them within the reach of all; therefore this is the time when laboring men and others should be providing themselves with homes. There is hardly a probability that property in Decatur will ever be any lower than it is now

ELECTION DAY.

This morning the polls opened on time at the several voting precincts, and voting opened up lively at the boginning. The principal interest of the election gathers about the elerkship and treasurer, and more about the latter than the former. There is a good deal of trading finance committee, viz.: B. B. Tuttle, in this way. Some who would ordinarily vote for Hardy for Clerk, vote for Waggener to gate a vote for Wood, and on the other hand some who would vote for Waggener from choice, were his election the only question at issue, vote for Hardy to gain a vote for Boyd. It is now difficult to determine which of the candidates. for Clerk suffers most from this kind of trading, but both are being sacrificed by their friends to a greater or less extent, where the treasuryship is the overshadowing question involved in the election. The candidates and their friends are working earnestly, but up to this writing 1878, and Feb. 12th, 1878, respectively, everything is quiet about the polls. Indications are that a full vote will be

BENEFIT SUPPER.

On Thursday evening of this week the ladies of Decatur will give a grand supper at the opera house, for the benefit of the Grenadiers. The tables will be ready for guests at 5:30 in the evening. An admission fee of ten cents will be charged at the door, and forty cents pays for the supper. The ladies having this matter in charge know exactly how to manage such affairs, and will spread a table fit to grace the palace of a king. Our citizens will generally feel an interest to give the sixfooters a lift to the extent of patronizing the supper.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN:-That strange compound of lunatic, fool and knave, the editor of the Morning San, in this morn ing's issue, in speaking of an article l published in last week's Review, giving the views of Rev. Dr. Crosby, of New York, on the temperance question, says: "We understand that marked copies of at paper were sent out to the whisky that paper were sent out to the whisky men of Decatur, so that they might not fall to see it."

The dirty, lying dog that edits that paper never understood any such thing, and in giving utterance to this sentiment per petrates a willful, nullicious and contempti ble falsehood.

Inasmuch as the obscurity of the Review very much worries the Sun, we take advantage of your columns, as well as our own, to brand cracked Kimball as a calumniator, who, doubtless, in the course of six months, will, by himself or agents, (if he does not play out before that time,) be importuning Dan. A sanctum loafer has just thrown lown an exchange in disgust. He picked it up, glanced at an editorial en-titled "St. Paul and the levees," and remarked, in an injured tone, that for is part the secular press were getting entirely too religious. He didn't mind the Sunday school lesson Sunday mornings so much, but when it come to having it dished up in the middle of the week, he confessed it wasn't what he took a daily paper for. Before we could explain to him the difference between the St. Paul of the offending editorial and the St. Paul of the Sunday school lesson he had rushed off to a news stand to buy a Swede paper set up principally with v's and y's, because he said if it did have the Sunday school lesson in it he couldn't understand it, -Burlington Hanckeye,

There is no case on record where Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound has failed to give satisfaction. On the other hand, wherever it has been used by our people, in severe colds, coughs, asthma, broughitis, croup, whooping cough and consumption, they are ing cough and consumption, they are enthusiastic in its praise. Containing no apium or other dangerous drug, it does not constipate, and is sufe to administer in all conditions of health. This is an important announcement, and the suffering are advised to heedit. Trial size ten cents; large size 50 cents and one dollar Sold by Dr. A. J. Stoner, Decatur.

Also agents for Prof. Parke,'s Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requires no physic. Price 25 cents. Try it.
